Andrea Fuder, Chief Purchasing Officer at Volvo Group has tragically passed away

Andrea Fuder, Chief Purchasing Officer and a member of the Volvo Group Executive Board since 2017, has tragically passed away following a short illness. Andrea led the global purchasing team and its ecosystem of supply partners through one of the most significant transformations the industry has ever seen, including navigating the pandemic, supply shortages, and an increasing volatile geopolitical landscape. She was instrumental in driving the Volvo Group transition towards more sustainable transport solutions.

“My thoughts are with Andrea’s loved ones during this difficult time of loss. There is no doubt that she leaves behind a remarkable legacy, having played a vital role in the Volvo Group success over the past eight years. She was a true driving force in harnessing purchasing power as a catalyst for positive change. Thanks to her dedication and commitment, our supply network is stronger than ever. Andrea will be deeply missed,” says Martin Lundstedt, President and CEO, Volvo Group.

Jens Holtinger, Executive Vice President Group Trucks Operations will serve as acting Chief Purchasing Officer.
